Hald&Lie Aviation Welcomes G&G Aviation as a New Partner, Strengthening Global Reach and Client Offerings

Monday, 2nd December 2025, Skanderborg, Denmark:

Hald&Lie Aviation is excited to announce its partnership with G&G Aviation, marking a significant milestone in its mission to enhance global reach and client service offerings. G&G Aviation will now operate under the H&L brand, uniting decades of expertise and solidifying H&L's position as a trusted name in aviation consultancy and services.

This partnership comes at a special moment as G&G Aviation celebrates its 30th anniversary. Together, the companies will deliver a broader range of services with a streamlined approach while maintaining a strong commitment to their shared values and ethical business practices.

While H&L and G&G Aviation are aligning their operations under the H&L brand, both companies will remain formally independent. This ensures that existing clients and represented companies of each party will experience no disruption in their current relationships. Instead, they will gain access to enhanced opportunities through a broader service portfolio, an expanded network, and improved market coverage.

The partnership brings together an exceptional team of leaders:

- Carsten Vistisen, CEO & Founding Partner, focuses on maintaining the business jet market and steering the company toward sustained growth and innovation.
- Giovanni Piccione, Senior Partner, leverages three decades of expertise in commercial aviation, turbine engines, and asset appraisals.
- Rob Nash, Managing Partner, continues his critical role in driving H&L's expansion and strengthening market presence.

Expanded Client Benefits

With this partnership, H&L offers an even more comprehensive suite of services, including:

- Sales and acquisitions of private and commercial aircraft
- Aircraft leasing and worldwide passenger and cargo charters
- Engine, APU, and component trading
- Specialist consultancy, including aviation asset appraisals

Clients will benefit from enhanced geographic coverage with offices in Denmark, Italy, and the UK, centralized operations for efficiency, and an unmatched network of expertise to meet diverse aviation needs.

Giovanni Piccione reflected on the partnership, stating: "We are very glad to announce this partnership as we celebrate our 30th anniversary. Aviation and markets in general have changed significantly since we started in 1994, and consolidation is now a must in any field of commerce. Over the past couple of years, we have been working closely with H&L to explore options and define the best way to enhance and optimize our activities with a joint approach, which is now ready.

"I'm convinced this partnership will bring to all members much more than the sum of the individual parts. Together, we provide a solid, reliable, and flexible counterpart for all of our clients, offering unparalleled expertise and solutions."

Carsten Vistisen added, "This partnership represents a significant step forward for H&L, allowing us to deliver a broader range of products, services, and perspectives. We are now better equipped than ever to address the dynamic needs of the aviation market."
